What has been worked on in the past month?	The past month has been rather quiet, however, the weekly meetings are continuing to prove effective. This is especially as fewer issues are arising as they are being fixed quickly and reps have the ability to frequently provide this feedback to students. It is great to see that these meetings are useful and are more commonly being cut short due to very few issues raised. Assignments have been discussed including the format of the end-of-year examinations to gain clarity within modules and how the year will roll out.
Successes from the past month and any Reps Wins	Reps have been communicating well with Law staff regarding various modules and providing great feedback to their year groups. Reps have been reaching out to students to get feedback for modules and have been doing a great job at representing their year groups and I am pleased to see the rep engagement within their group chats.
Plans for next month	Plans for next month include making sure students feel at ease when returning to campus for the second part of their first term and to provide any guidance with key dates for return. Weekly meetings are due to resume the first week of teaching in the new year and I am ready to assist students with any issues they may have over the winter break & upon return to campus.
