

Volunteer Officer Report December 2019

Zoe Hoy – Disabilities Students' Officer

What has been worked on in the past month?

In the past month the main thing I have worked on are my plans for the campaign that I am going to run. I have had lots of meetings to come up with ideas and plan how my campaign is going to work and what exactly I'm going to do for it. I have then had to put all these ideas together which is getting me very excited. I cannot wait to begin my campaign and let you all be a part of it.

Successes from the past month and any Reps Wins

I was invited to talk about inclusivity by the terrible film society at a talk that they had held as an inclusivity week of their own. It was lovely to be able to speak to them and answer questions that they had about inclusivity and give feedback.

It was also nice to be able to show that I am approachable. People shouldn't be afraid to come up and ask me questions and that I will do my best to answer them and help.

Plans for next month

I have realised that in the past month that a lot of the work I do as disabilities officer tends to be "behind the scenes" and many students do not understand what it is I do, so to give a little insight to what I have been doing I will be writing an article that you will be able to read on the SU website. This will unfortunately have to wait after exams have been undertaken but I will post a link to it once it has been written and uploaded.

In the next month, I will also continue to work on planning and hope to finalise my plans on my campaign so I can put them into place.
