What has been worked on in the past month?	Following on from LGBT+ History Month in February, I have sat down with my committee and members to review our events and campaigns. Our events received great turnouts and showed students that work is being done to support them through difficult experiences and celebrate their wins. We are now looking ahead to Trans Day of Visibility by working on a completely virtual campaign.
Successes from the past month and any Reps Wins	A number of our members ran in the elections and Campaigns Network committee elections and will undertake new roles in September; I am so happy for them as it is a great experience to be involved and volunteer with the SU and supporting minority students.
Plans for next month	Trans Day of Visibility is held on the 31st March and we are working on an online campaign around celebrating the successes of trans people, promoting trans work and educating people on the history of the Trans and Non-Binary community.
