

Volunteer Officer Report March 2019

Glen Allison – College of Arts Officer

What has been worked on in the past month?

I have met with various students to discuss the implementation of study groups for in-class tests and upcoming exams. I have discussed the growing demand for this with academics, who support this, however, they also stress that staff resources may not permit this. I discussed the option of approaching Academic Societies, who may be willing/able to assist. Academics stressed that any learning materials for these independent sessions would need to be requested as soon as possible, as it may take some time to prepare it.

Successes from the past month and any Reps Wins

I've had very little contact with my reps this month, due to academic pressures and upcoming dissertation deadline.

Plans for next month

As we're close to the end of the academic year, I plan to support the Reps to urge students to complete Module Evaluation. Our college's response last year provided some excellent feedback, however, more completion would provide a better sample for us to work on and improve the student experience. I will be sitting on the College of Arts Academic Affairs Committee, where I hope to encourage academics to push for the completion of Module Evaluation, also.
